

List of Pharmaceutical Companies in Delhi: India could make its place in the global pharmaceuticals sector because of the large pool of potential scientists and engineers steering the industry ahead to a higher level. The pharmacist has to be a protagonist in medicine management and as an overall health care programmer rather than a role of mere dispenser of drugs. The pharmaceutical practice sectors have the requirement of technically and clinically skilled pharmacy professionals capable enough to face global challenges or to compete with the multinationals. Several pharmacy companies targeting pipeline of specialty drugs, niche molecules and complex therapies have ramped up their R&D spend, despite these challenges.

The capital city of India i.e. New Delhi is also one of those points where the pharmaceutical industry is thriving. Nearly 50,000 patients are treated in the 34 hospitals and several dispensaries, polyclinics and local clinics run by the Delhi government. Lok Nayak, which is Delhi government's biggest tertiary care hospital, has a single medicine counter being run by nursing staff for dispensing medicines for patients coming to the emergency department. Delhi is up for online pharmacies to keep pace with the ongoing demands. India has about 50 e-pharmacy start-ups that have raised $92.6 million in funding. The new opportunity is exciting in this sub-sector and there are companies doubling their efforts to refine their search for employees to do on-the-ground. Experts said the growth of the online sector exceeds 10% and funding is one of the main reasons driving recruitment.

Currently, companies are pulling talent from retailers for functions like reading prescriptions and they're going to look at traditional pharmacies. E-pharmacies are looking for medical roles specifically of pharmacists, botanists, as well as marketing and tech experts. CEO of Netmeds.com, Pradeep Dadha, told that the employee strength will be twice from the existing count. He quoted "We are looking to hire pharmacists and increase our warehousing facilities".

PCI being the educationist regulatory body in pharmacy has the vision to strengthen and upgrade the pharmacy curriculum to produce competent pharmacist workforce. To enable to meet the growing demands of the industry and community and a step towards this direction PCI has proposed and submitted some amendments to the Pharmacy Act to the concerned department.
